What Is the Millennium, and What Will Life Be Like During This Time?

Sixbert SANGWA • August 09, 2024

The concept of the Millennium is one of the most fascinating aspects of Christian eschatology, often surrounded by curiosity and sometimes confusion. It is a period that is clearly outlined in the Bible, specifically in the Book of Revelation, yet its significance and the details surrounding it are profound and warrant careful exploration. In this article, we will delve into what the Millennium is, when it occurs, who will enter it, how life will be during this time, and everything else that pertains to this remarkable period. This examination will be grounded in Scripture, providing a detailed and clear understanding for believers and seekers alike. The question has never been more relevant than today as we approach the reign of the Antichrist, which precedes the Millennium.

What Is the Millennium?

The Millennium, from the Latin word mille, meaning "thousand," refers to the thousand-year reign of Jesus Christ on earth. This period is mentioned explicitly in Revelation 20:1-6, where it is described as a time when Satan is bound, and Christ reigns with His saints.

During these thousand years, Christ will establish His kingdom on earth, fulfilling many Old Testament prophecies about a time of peace, justice, and righteousness. For example, Isaiah prophesies about a future era of peace and justice (Isaiah 9:6-7). This period is not merely symbolic but a literal time frame that will follow the events of the Great Tribulation and Christ's Second Coming, as we see in Matthew 24:29-30 and Revelation 19:11-16.

Additionally, this period will also fulfill the prophecy of the stone cut without hands that struck Nebuchadnezzar's statue, representing the establishment of God's eternal kingdom (Daniel 2:34-35, Daniel 2:44-45). Jesus is identified as this stone in several New Testament passages. In Matthew 21:42, Jesus quotes Psalm 118:22, saying, "The stone the builders rejected has become the cornerstone; the Lord has done this, and it is marvelous in our eyes." Similarly, 1 Peter 2:6-8 references Jesus as the cornerstone and a stone of stumbling. Additionally, in Acts 4:11, Peter declares, "Jesus is 'the stone you builders rejected, which has become the cornerstone.'"

When Does the Millennium Occur?

The Millennium will begin immediately after the Second Coming of Christ, which is described in Revelation 19:11-21. At this point, Jesus will return to earth, defeat the Antichrist and his armies, and establish His kingdom. This event marks the beginning of the Millennium.

The sequence of events leading to the Millennium includes several key phases:

1. The Rise of the Antichrist: Currently, if we all see, the Antichrist is set to rise to power for a prophesized seven-year term as a global leader, deceiving many and establishing a period of great tribulation (2 Thessalonians 2:3-4; Revelation 13:1-8). This time of tribulation is marked by widespread suffering and persecution of believers. The seven-year reign is highlighted in Daniel 9:27: "He will confirm a covenant with many for one 'seven.' In the middle of the 'seven,' he will put an end to sacrifice and offering. And at the temple, he will set up an abomination that causes desolation, until the end that is decreed is poured out on him." This period is further referenced in Revelation 11:2-3 and Revelation 12:6, which describe periods of forty-two months and one thousand two hundred sixty days, respectively, equating to three and a half years each, totaling seven years.
2. The Rapture of the Church: Believers in Christ, both dead and alive, will soon be caught up to meet the Lord in the air before the period of great tribulation (1 Thessalonians 4:16-17; 1 Corinthians 15:51-52). This event, known as the rapture, serves to protect the church from the coming wrath of God that will be poured out on the Antichrist and his followers (Revelation 3:10, Revelation 6:16-17). Scripture makes it clear that Christians are not to suffer the wrath of God but are appointed for salvation (1 Thessalonians 5:9, Romans 8:1). Just as God protected Noah in an ark before pouring out His wrath on the old earth, He will rapture the church before pouring His wrath on the current earth. Jesus said, "As it was in the days of Noah, so it will be at the coming of the Son of Man" (Matthew 24:37-39), illustrating that just as Noah was saved before the flood, believers will be taken up before the tribulation.
3. The Great Tribulation: Following the rapture, the earth will experience unprecedented hardship and divine judgment described in Matthew 24:21 and Revelation 6-18. This intense period begins in the middle of the Antichrist's seven-year term. According to Daniel 9:27, the Antichrist will break his covenant and set up an abomination that causes desolation, marking the start of the Great Tribulation. During this time, life on earth will be marked by extreme turmoil, natural disasters, wars, and persecution of believers. The Antichrist's tyrannical rule will lead to widespread suffering, making it a period of unparalleled distress and chaos.
4. The Second Coming of Christ: At the end of the Great Tribulation, Jesus will return to earth in power and glory (Revelation 19:11-21). In this final battle, known as Armageddon, the Antichrist will attempt to exterminate all believers. However, Jesus will defeat the Antichrist and his armies. The Antichrist and the false prophet will be captured and thrown into the lake of fire (Revelation 19:19-20).
5. The Judgment of the Nations: After His return, Jesus will judge the nations, separating the righteous from the wicked (Matthew 25:31-46). The righteous will enter the Millennium, while the wicked will be cast into eternal punishment.
6. The Establishment of the Millennial Kingdom: After defeating His enemies and judging the nations, Jesus will establish His millennial kingdom on earth, characterized by peace, justice, and righteousness (Isaiah 9:6-7; Revelation 20:4-6). Christ will reign with the Church. Revelation 20:4 mentions, "They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years," referring to martyred and resurrected saints. 2 Timothy 2:12 says, "If we endure, we will also reign with Him," while Revelation 5:10 declares, "You have made them to be a kingdom and priests to serve our God, and they will reign on the earth." Revelation 2:26 and 1 Corinthians 6:2 also highlight the Church's role in governance during this period.

This sequence of events is crucial for understanding the overall framework of Christian eschatology and the significance of the Millennium. For a novice reader, these steps provide a clear roadmap of the end times as described in the Bible.

Who will enter the millennium?

The question of who will enter the Millennium is significant, as it determines who will experience this unique time of peace and blessing on earth.
Firstly, resurrected saints, who are believers that have died and were resurrected at the time of Christ's return, will enter the Millennium. These saints, having been glorified, will reign with Christ during this period (Revelation 20:4-6).
Secondly, tribulation saints, those who come to faith in Christ during the Tribulation and survive it, will also enter the Millennium in their natural bodies (Revelation 7:14).
Additionally, a remnant of Israel, who recognize Jesus as their Messiah during the Tribulation, will be preserved and will enter the Millennium as part of God's covenant promise to Israel (Zechariah 12:10; Romans 11:26). Furthermore, believers who were raptured before the Tribulation will also be part of the Millennium, reigning with Christ in their glorified bodies (1 Thessalonians 4:16-17; 1 Corinthians 15:51-52).
Lastly, at the judgment of the nations (Matthew 25:31-46), those who have treated Christ's brethren—likely referring to Jewish people during the Tribulation—with kindness will be allowed to enter the Millennium.

What Will Life Be Like During the Millennium?

Life during the Millennium will be markedly different from the current age, as the Bible provides several glimpses into this transformative period. Christ will rule with perfect justice and righteousness, establishing a theocratic government with Jesus as the King of kings and Lord of lords (Isaiah 9:6-7). The curse on the earth will be lifted, leading to unparalleled peace and prosperity (Isaiah 11:6-9). Nations will live in harmony, and wars will cease as swords will be turned into plowshares, eliminating military conflicts (Micah 4:3). This peace will stem from Christ's righteous rule.

Additionally, the natural world will be restored to a state of harmony and abundance. Animals will live peacefully together, and the environment will be free from the corruption it currently suffers (Romans 8:19-22; Isaiah 11:6-9). The land itself will also be restored and will flourish, producing abundant harvests (Amos 9:13; Ezekiel 36:35). Human lifespans will dramatically increase, with people living for hundreds of years, much like before the flood (Isaiah 65:20), marking a time of physical well-being and health.

Jerusalem will become the center of worship and government during the Millennium, with nations coming to Jerusalem to worship the King and learn His ways (Zechariah 14:16-17; Isaiah 2:2-4). Moreover, Satan will be bound in the Abyss, unable to deceive the nations (Revelation 20:1-3), contributing to the peace and righteousness that characterize this period. This era, as depicted in Scripture, represents a time of profound transformation and fulfillment of God's promises, offering believers a vision of a future marked by divine justice, peace, and prosperity.

The End of the Millennium and the Eternal State

At the end of the Millennium, Satan will be released for a short time to deceive the nations once more (Revelation 20:7-10). This period will culminate in the Battle of Gog and Magog, where Satan will gather nations from the four corners of the earth to wage war against the saints and the beloved city. This final rebellion will be swiftly crushed by God, and fire will come down from heaven to devour the enemies. Satan will then be cast into the lake of fire forever (Revelation 20:10).

Following this, the Great White Throne Judgment will occur, where all the dead will be judged according to their works (Revelation 20:11-15). This includes the second resurrection, which involves the resurrection of the wicked for judgment. Those whose names are not found in the Book of Life will be cast into the lake of fire (Revelation 20:15).

After these events, God will create a new heaven and a new earth, where He will dwell with His people for eternity (Revelation 21:1-4). This marks the beginning of the eternal state, where there will be no more sin, suffering, or death (Revelation 21:4).

Conclusion

Understanding the Millennium is crucial for believers today. It provides hope and a vision of the future where Christ will reign with righteousness, peace, and justice. It reminds us of God's faithfulness to fulfill His promises and serves as a motivation to live faithfully in anticipation of Christ's return. In today's world, where injustice, conflict, and suffering are rampant, the Millennium offers a powerful reminder of the ultimate triumph of God's kingdom. As we await this glorious future, we must urgently live lives that reflect the values of that coming kingdom, embodying Christ's love, justice, and peace in our daily lives. The Millennium is not just a distant theological concept but a future reality that shapes how we live today. With the current Babylonian system preparing to inaugurate the Antichrist, the urgency for believers to get ready for the rapture has never been greater. This understanding should compel us to persevere in faith, knowing that the best is yet to come and that we must be prepared for Christ's imminent return. The time is now; let us remain vigilant and ready.
